The response to arguments presented in the correspondence filed February 28, 2001 is as set out below:

Page 5-6, " Hasebe discloses an (col 5, lines 31-33 and col 7, line 64 to col 8, line 4).

The applicant is referred to Hasebe et al: " col 5, lines 3-5, specifically lines 13-16, which clearly recite that " it is possible to transfer the stored electronic data to another user so that it is possible to use this medium 1 in another computer ". Another computer would, undoubtedly, be second user's computer- second user with second use information. Also, the storage medium would also change and would have its own particular personal number (second medium ID).

Again, applicant will appreciate that as users would transfer information from vendor to seller or user to user, the use information etc. would also change/alter and would be named second use information, third use information etc.

Furthermore, Hasebe et al, col 5, lines 17-20 unambiguously recite: " Figs. 3 to 14 are explanatory views for embodiments of the present invention. As one example of electronic data shown in Fig. 2, an explanation is given next for software used for a computer ".
